

Calls

Call for Video Responses: In partnership with the 2016 NEH Summer Institute “American Veterans in Society” and Veterans in Society Conference (both at Virginia Tech), JVS invites you to contribute a short video statement about “What Veterans Studies Means to You.” With your video contribution a digital archive will be created that seeks to sustain, unite, and broaden the interdisciplinary intellectual community of veterans studies. For the full call and information on how to submit your video, please visit <http://tiny.cc/vsvideo> or email veteransstudies@gmail.com for more information.

Call for Special Issues: For the Winter 2016 issue of JVS, we seek essays adapted from presentations delivered at the Conference on College Composition and Communication (CCCC). The deadline for submissions via our online queue is December 1, 2016.

JVS also invites works* of the following genres for future special issues:

1. Essays by undergraduate writers, including those by student veterans, military spouses and dependents, and especially by students enrolled or who have completed “veterans studies” courses. Deadline for submissions is May 5, 2017.
2. Works of creative nonfiction by December 1, 2017

Open Call for Submissions: JVS invites submissions for future open issues. Submission types include original research articles, program profiles, interviews, and reviews. For submission guidelines, <http://tiny.cc/JVSsubmit>

Note: JVS cannot offer substantial assistance for the composition or revision of manuscripts*
